Cancer is one of the most complex diseases and probably more feared than any other condition. No matter if you are going through allopathic or natural treatment, essential oils are very effective companions. In this 90 minute talk you will be walked through the long history of essential oils, as well as getting an understanding of the different qualities and their uses. You will experience their immediate effects, and learn how essential oils are utilized and applied to combat various side effects of cancer treatments. You will also find out, how they help you coping with emotional issues you might be facing.
